Your 11-Day Journey

Day 1

Welcome to the City of Gold-Your Safari Era Begins

Land in Johannesburg and look for your name on the board - someone is already waiting for you. Your transfer climbs the ridge to the Four Seasons Westcliff, a pink landmark terraced into the hillside with cascading gardens and the whole city laid out below. Settle in, let the flight fall off your shoulders, and meet us in the lobby at dusk. Tonight's welcome dinner is at a celebrated open-fire grill house in the city's most stylish quarter, where everything arrives off the flame and the room hums. Eleven days start here.

Meals: Dinner

Day 2

Soweto-Where the Story Turns

Today asks something of you. Soweto is not a stop on a tour; it is the township that carried South Africa's freedom struggle and still sets the country's cultural tempo. You will spend the morning walking it with a guide who knows its streets, its history and its people from the inside. Lunch is a braai right there in the neighbourhood - grilled meat, traditional plates, conversation that keeps going. In the afternoon, the Apartheid Museum gives the whole of the twentieth century its full and unflinching weight. Tonight is deliberately unscheduled. Some days you need to sit with.

Meals: Breakfast, Lunch

Day 3

A Day That Belongs Entirely to You

No wake-up call, no bus. Johannesburg is yours to take at whatever speed you like. Some of you will spend it in the spa or by the pool with a book and zero guilt. Others will want the city, and for that there is an optional inner-city walking tour you can add on - a beloved second-hand bookstore, the traditional healers' market, Chancellor House and the Ethiopian quarter, all in an afternoon. Shopping, galleries, a long lunch, a nap: all correct answers.

Meals: Breakfast

Day 4

Into the Bush-Shepherd's Tree

Breakfast, bags down, and we drive out of the city into Pilanesberg National Park - a malaria-free Big Five reserve sitting inside an ancient volcanic crater. Lunch is waiting at Shepherd's Tree Game Lodge before you check in to a suite with glass walls, a private deck and the savanna doing its thing in front of you. Afternoon tea at four, then your first game drive as the light turns gold and the bush starts moving. Dinner back at the lodge, under more stars than you have seen in years.

Meals: Breakfast, Lunch, Dinner

Big Five, Sunrise to Sundowner

The optional wake-up call comes at half four, and you will take it. Hot tea in the dark, then out into the reserve as the sun comes up - lion, leopard, elephant, rhino, buffalo, and a guide who reads the ground like a page. Breakfast back at camp with your camera roll to compare. The middle of the day is yours: the pool, the viewing deck, a long horizontal nap. Lunch, afternoon tea, then out again for the sundowner drive, where a drink in your hand and the sky on fire is simply the standard here. Dinner runs late, and nobody is in a hurry.

Wheels Up for the Mother City

Early breakfast at the lodge, with boxes to go for anyone who would rather sleep, then the transfer to the airport and a midday flight south. Cape Town introduces itself properly: a twelve-minute helicopter flight along the shoreline, over Lion's Head, Clifton, Camps Bay and the Twelve Apostles range with the Atlantic glittering underneath. You land, and then you check in beneath those same peaks at the 12 Apostles Hotel and Spa, mountain on one side, ocean on the other. Dinner is on your own tonight - sunset drinks somewhere high, dinner somewhere good. The concierge has opinions and so do we.

Bo-Kaap, Cape Malay Spice and Robben Island

Morning in Bo-Kaap, the Cape Malay quarter where every house is painted a different impossible colour and the history underneath that colour is far older and far heavier than the postcards let on. Then into a kitchen for a Cape Malay cooking class - the spice blends, the technique, the food you will be trying to recreate at home by Christmas. In the afternoon we take the ferry out to Robben Island for a private tour: the leprosy graveyard, the lime quarry, Robert Sobukwe's house, and the maximum security prison where thousands of this country's freedom fighters were held. You will be quiet on the boat back. That is the right response. Anyone who would rather not make the crossing can stay ashore at the waterfront and shop. Dinner is yours tonight.

Cape Town, On Your Terms

A whole free day in one of the most beautiful cities on earth. If you want to see all of it at once, add on the full-day Cape Peninsula tour: the cable car up Table Mountain first thing, Kirstenbosch at the foot of the mountain, a tasting in a historic estate cellar, the surf town and the seaside village, the penguin colony at Boulders Beach, the lighthouse at Cape Point and the whole spectacular run of Chapman's Peak on the way home. Or do none of it. The spa, the sea and a lounger with your name on it are also a complete day.

Winelands Bound-Stellenbosch

A slow morning and a midday checkout, then out of the city and into the Winelands, where the mountains close in and the vines run to the horizon. First stop is a working cellar: a wine advisor walks you through the barrels and the three-hundred-year history around them, then pours. Lunch afterwards is on your own at the deli or the lounge, which is exactly the kind of low-effort afternoon you want at this point in the trip. Check in at Lanzerac Wine Estate, all Cape Dutch gables and oak-shaded terraces, and give the rest of the day to the spa. Dinner is yours.

One Last Day in the Vines-and the Farewell Table

Breakfast on the terrace, and then a day shaped however you want it. Two add-ons are worth your attention: a tour tracing South Africa's Black winemakers and the estates they have built, and a long lunch at a chef's private home. Otherwise: massage, vineyard walk, one more glass in the sun. Tonight is the farewell wine pairing dinner at the hotel - multiple courses, a wine chosen for each one, and the specific joy of a table full of people who were strangers ten days ago. This is the one you will be talking about on the plane.

Meals: Breakfast, Dinner

Day 11

No Goodbyes, Just See You Soon

One last breakfast with the vineyards in front of you, then a private transfer to Cape Town International whenever your flight calls. You came for a safari and you are leaving with Soweto, Robben Island, the bush at sunrise and a group chat that is never going quiet again. South Africa does that. Come back.

Meals: Breakfast
